Hans and Ted,

This is what I will show at the project review next week on surveillance.
Basically I think we need to get together to outline a better strategy for this area. It is my understanding that the senior team supports hiring an expert in this area. So I think what we should do is hire a consultant or two with specific expertise in surveillance in order to help define enough of what PM needs in this area and then hire someone as a full-time employee to further define and run this program.
